STREAM Theme Book - Mathematics

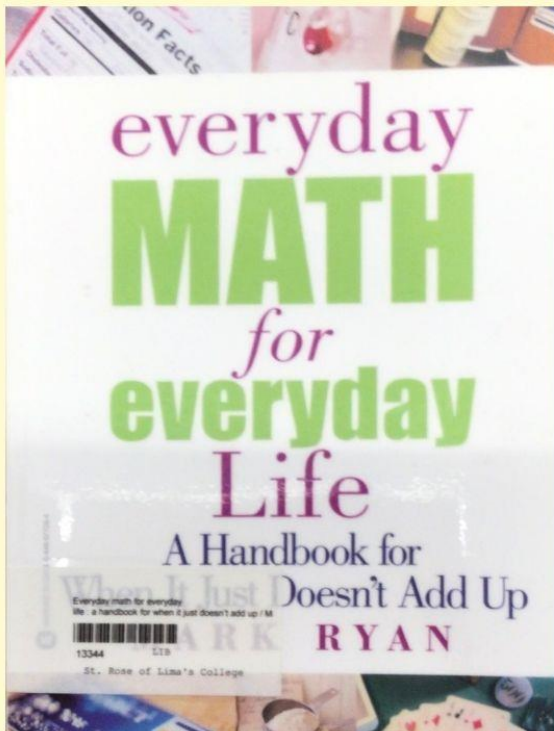

Reaching for the Moon

As a young girl, Katherine Johnson showed an exceptional aptitude for math. In school, she quickly skipped ahead several grades and was soon studying complex equations with the support of a professor who recognized her potential. However, as a young African American girl living in a time of severe racism, she faced many challenges. Despite this, Katherine lived her life with her father's words in mind: "You are no better than anyone else, and nobody else is better than you." Throughout her extraordinary career, she broke boundaries and paved the way for women in science. This is her own story, a lively autobiography that will inspire you everywhere.

Everyday Math for Everyday Life

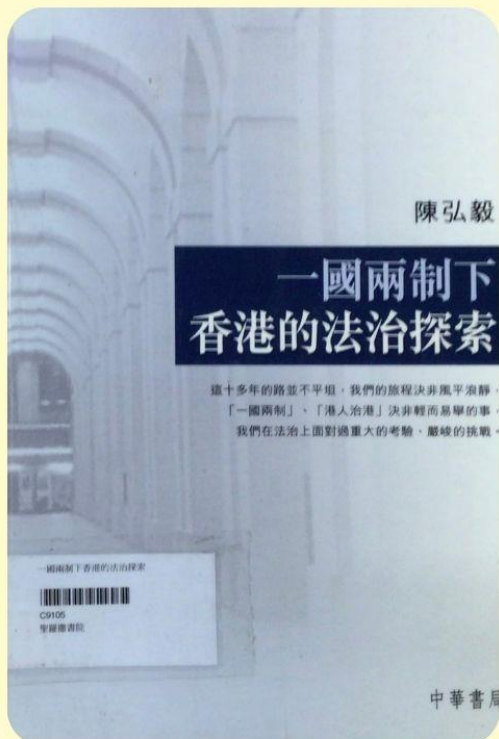

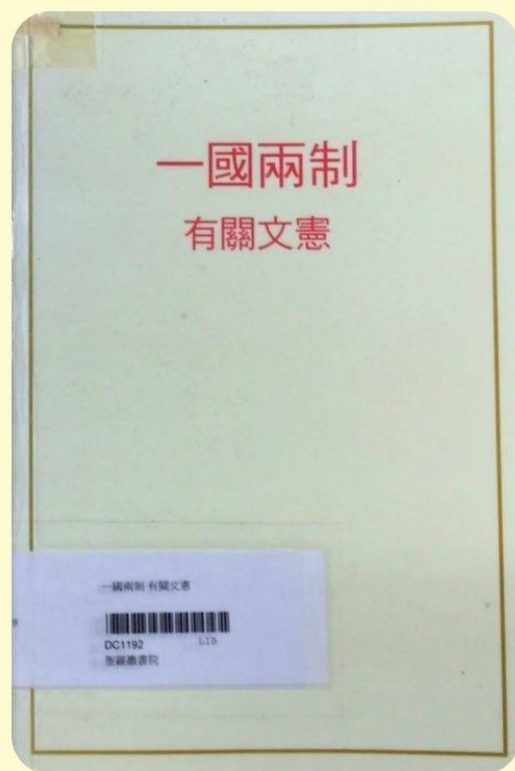

For everyone who's ever said, "I'm no good with numbers," here's a practical, user-friendly field guide to the math skills you really need in your everyday life. For instance, say your dinner bill came to $78.35, plus tip, and you divided it amongst yourself and two friends. So how did you end up paying $50? There are many situations in life where a quick calculation can come in handy. Contrary to popular belief, the ability to calculate a tip, eyeball square area, or convert kilometres to miles—without using your fingers or moving your lips—is not inborn. Everyday math skills can be painlessly learned and easily mastered, transforming you from a person who doesn't know the meaning of APR into someone who understands credit card rates and their long-term impact on your wallet. Now, let's enjoy Mark Ryan's jargon-free approach and you'll learn how you can master math.
